LEADERS OF THE UNSEEN

Problem:

The customer uses two release agents, one of which is co-solvent. He wants to totally eliminate the co-solvents from his production in order to become more environmentally conscious and safe for his workers.

Solution:

Concontrol offers the company a single water-based product to replace the previous two. The efficiency of the production process is greatly enhanced by switching to a single product. The product meets the customer's expectations in terms of results and because it is water-based, which removes all co-solvent release agents from the production process.

Result:
